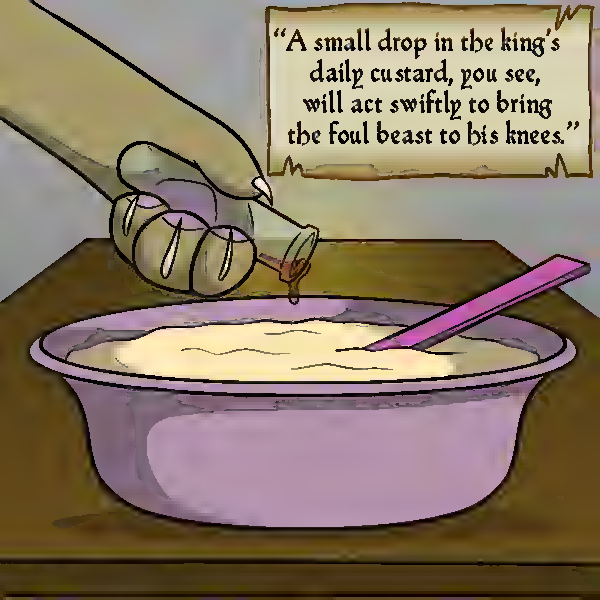
There once was a kingdom in a land far away...
A land full of cats, ruled by King Felidae.

There was sorrow and fear all across the cat nation,
CRACK!
For the tyrant cat king ruled with much subjugation.

The king's faithful servant witnessed horrors each day, and couldn't stand to see everyone treated this way.

So she vowed to be noble
by taking a stand
with a hired assassin
to bring peace to the land.

"You need not have me kill him," the catssassin said.
"But use this small vial of poison instead."



"A small drop in the king's daily custard, you see, will act swiftly to bring the foul beast to his knees."

So death on a platter
the servant did bring to her ill-fated master.

"Long live the king."
